HIJAB/NIQAB/BURKA

DEBATE

On Bill 62 the Government has done right thing by Barbara Kay

It is not Islamophobia that fuels Quebecers' enthusiasm for the face cover law (nobody today is, after all, clamouring for a hijab ban). Two aspects of Quebec culture, which distinguish it from the ROC, can explain the support. First, in Quebec, the social ideal is modeled on the French principle of the full secularization of public life in the interest of "vivre ensemble" (living together) with minimal friction. A level social playing field is therefore privileged over the individual's right to practice customs that impede social reciprocity, which the niqab certainly does.

As a Muslim, I strongly support the right to ban the veil

I was raised as an observant Muslim in a British family. Women, I was taught, determine their own conduct — including their 'veiling'. We'd cover our hair only if we freely chose to do so. That's why I'm baffled by the notion that all good Muslim women should cover their hair or face. My entire family are puzzled by it too, as are millions like us. Not until recent years has the idea taken root that Muslim women are obliged by their faith to wear a veil. It's a sign, I think, not of assertive Islam, but of what happens when Islamists are tolerated by a western culture that's absurdly anxious to avoid offence. This strange, unwitting collaboration between liberals and extremists has been going on for years. But at last there are signs that it is ending.

Natasha Fatah Points Out Face-Veils Are Banned In Numerous Countries

Natasha Fatah – one of the best journalists in Canada – has done great work bringing a sense of balance and reason to the discussion of Bill 62. Rather than just repeat the tired old elitist messaging that calls any assertion of values "racist," Fatah uses facts to point out that there are numerous countries and regions that ban face coverings. It's a point that has been left out of much of the discussion in Canada, yet it's essential to giving context to the efforts of Quebec, and the many people across our country who agree with what Quebec is doing.

NCCM Deeply Disappointed by Vote in Quebec National Assembly

"Today's decision by the Quebec National Assembly, coming as it does in the lead-up to a provincial election campaign, boils down to ugly identity politics. By tabling this discriminatory legislation, the Quebec government is advancing a dangerous political agenda on the backs of minorities, while pandering to bigoted populism instead of practising principled governance,” says NCCM Executive Director Ihsaan Gardee. “This legislation is an unjustified infringement of religious freedoms and it is contrary to the values enshrined in the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms as well as Quebec’s Charter of Human Rights and Freedoms,” adds Gardee.

Banning the niqab is bigoted and sexist. Or is it?

Recently I talked with Roksana Nazneen, a Muslim from Bangladesh, who describes the growing embrace of the niqab in Quebec and elsewhere as an enormously regressive trend. "It fights integration," she says. She argues that guilt-ridden feminists just don't get it. They do not know what the niqab means and they should not be fighting for the right of women to self-oppress. And make no mistake: "The niqab means that men should not hear your voice." What kind of Muslim community do we want 10 years from now, she asks?

Muslim group calls for burka ban

The Muslim Canadian Congress said the garments, which cover the face, have no basis in Islam. The group's spokesperson, Farzana Hassan, said the practice of wearing the burka and niqab is more rooted in Middle Eastern culture than in religious teachings. She added that there is nothing in the Qur'an that stipulates women must cover their faces. She said the issue is one of public safety. "To cover your face is to conceal your identity," she said. "If a government claims to uphold equality between men and women, there is no reason for them to support a practice that marginalizes women."

Quebec man accused of 'honour-based' assault on daughter because she removed hijab in public

A Quebec man has been charged with allegedly assaulting his teenage daughter over a year in what police are calling "honour-based" violence. Gatineau police say the level of violence escalated once the man discovered the girl was removing her hijab when she was away from the family home. She decided to file a police complaint, which culminated in an arrest Wednesday.

Is Canada Committing Cultural Suicide?

The wearing of the hijab and the burqa, the self-segregation into Muslim-only ghettos, and the appeasement of the elites serve to increase the power of non-integrationist, fundamentalist Muslims, and to diminish the strength of the moderates. I'm talking, of course, about genuine moderates, not the stealth jihadists who pretend to be moderates while transforming their communities into little Meccas. In this environment the genuine moderate is on his own. He can't look for support from his fellow Muslims and he won't get any from the larger society.

Canadian International Council warned about speaker from National Council of Canadian Muslims it featured at event

There are Muslims in Canada, such as Farzana Hassan, who wish to live in peace, who do not accuse Canadians of "intolerance and fear," who do not slander truth-tellers who advocate for human rights, who do not harass them and accuse them of "hate" for pointing out the truth about the bigotry, intolerance, deception, and violence perpetrated against infidels in the name of Islam; nor do they advocate for themselves a superior place in society.

Muslim student in Canada posts hate screed, "Be proud of this country? For what, over 400 years of genocide?"

After conducting an investigation, Dalhousie's vice-provost of student affairs, Arig al Shaibah, concluded that Ms. Khan violated its code of student conduct which prohibits "unwelcome or persistent conduct that the student knows, or ought to know, would cause another person to feel demeaned, intimidated or harassed." "I see it as my right to express my views publicly in whatever manner I choose within the limits of free speech," Ms. Khan wrote in her response to the university's investigation....

MOTION M-103

Canada's Anti-Islamophobia Motion

Fear or anger toward radical Islam and Muslims are unlikely to be caused by an "irrational hatred and fear of Islam," or "Islamophobia". They are, however, likely to be triggered by global radical Islamic terrorist attacks and more people becoming aware of the aggressive and intolerant nature of many Quranic verses, of the Muslim Prophet's hadiths, of what Canadian Muslim clerics are preaching and of radical Islam.

M-103 committee hears calls for better data and a definition of Islamophobia

The anti-Islamophobia motion M-103 touched off a firestorm of controversy en route to its passage in March. Put forward by Liberal MP Iqra Khalid, it asked the government to "recognize the need to quell the increasing public climate of hate and fear." Though it is not a law, critics have claimed it will lead to the stifling of free speech by preventing people from criticizing Islam. Better hate crime data, more training for law enforcement and a clear definition of Islamophobia are some of the recommendations the House of Commons heritage committee has heard most frequently as part of its racism and religious discrimination study required by Motion 103.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH

"If You Criticize Islam, You Will Suffer Consequences" - Interview with Deborah Weiss

Editor's Note: In this interview with Deborah Weiss from 2013, she discusses UN Resolution 16/18, a resolution put forward by the Organization of Islamic Cooperation that was adopted by the United Nations. Resolution 16/18 is allegedly about "combating intolerance, negative stereotyping and stigmatization of, and discrimination, incitement to violence, and violence against persons based on religion or belief." The real goal of this resolution was to stifle criticism of Islam. Motion M-103 seems to be an attempt to implement Resolution 16/18 in Canada.

Europe: Journalists Against Free Speech

Gone is all pretense that journalism is about reporting the facts. These are the aims of a political actor. This political player, the EU, the biggest in Europe, works openly at influencing the "free press" with its own political agendas. One of these agendas is the issue of migration into Europe from Africa and the Middle East. In his September State of the Union address, the president of the EU Commission, Jean-Claude Juncker, made it clear that whatever Europeans may think -- polls repeatedly show that the majority of Europeans do not want any more migrants -- the EU has no intention of putting a stop to migration. "

The EU Lectures Journalists about PC Reporting by Bruce Bawer

"Sensationalist or overly simplistic reporting on migration," we read, "can enflame existing societal prejudices" and thus "endanger migrants' safety." Again, what counts as "sensationalist" or "overly simplistic"? That is not spelled out, either. Nor, we are told, should we associate "terms such as 'Muslim' or 'Islam'... with particular acts," because to do that is to "stigmatize." What exactly does this mean? That when a man shouts "Allahu Akbar" after having gunned down, run over with a truck, or blown to bits dozens of innocent pedestrians or concertgoers, we are supposed to ignore that little detail?

PragerU Sues YouTube and Google over Alleged Censorship of Conservatives

"The suit argues the site must use the 'laws governing free speech,' not its own discretion, to make decisions about what to censor," they reported, adding that PragerU "alleges that by limiting access to some of its videos without clear criteria YouTube is infringing on PragerU's First Amendment rights." YouTube has repeatedly censored PragerU on their platform, labeling political videos as "restricted" adult content and even removing a video of "a Muslim man describing how he was raised to be anti-Semitic," branding the video as "hate speech."

IMMIGRATION-MIGRATION

Hungary fears Soros influence could force out Orbán, open doors to Muslim migrants

Viktor Orbán has adamantly resisted the immigration policy of his European neighbors, despite threats of legal action by the EU over quotas. Like Hungary, Poland, the Czech Republic and Slovakia have also resisted the mass intake of migrants. "George Soros would use his organisation, now the second largest political activist charity in the world, to influence Hungary's 2018 general election" and "remove Prime Minister Viktor Orbán's Fidesz party from power, tear down the border fence, and implement the "Soros Plan" to flood Europe with one million third-world migrants annually"

'Muhammad' is the Future of Europe

During the next thirty years, the population of Africa is expected to increase by one billion! No doubt, Africa's exploding population will try to reach the shores of a wealthy, senile Europe, which is already undergoing an internal demographic revolution. Europe, to retain its culture, will need to make hard-headed decisions, not just amuse itself to death. The question is: Will Europe protect its borders and civilization before it is submerged?

AROUND THE WORLD

ASSYRIA

The Case for Assyrian Independence

In the rush to condemn the liberation of Iraq as a mistake, we forget the terror that Saddam Hussein and his two sons inflicted on their people. A visit to nearly every home in Iraqi will have a picture of one or more family members among the nearly one million slaughtered by Saddam. For the Assyrian Christians, the move toward the independence of Kurdistan is their encouragement to move forward with their independence as well. While the Arab part of Iraq is, like other Arab nations, an ongoing disaster, at least the northern third of Iraq, comprising Assyria and Kurdistan, is on its way to being another "shining city on a hill" in the Middle East -- an example, a source of hope and blessing to an area with so little.

CZECH REPUBLIC

"Czech Donald Trump" Wins Landslide Victory

The election outcome, the result of popular discontent with established parties, is the latest in a recent wave of successes for European populists, including in Austria and Germany. The populist ascendancy highlights a shifting political landscape in Europe where runaway multiculturalism and political correctness, combined with a massive influx of unassimilable migrants from Africa, Asia and the Middle East, have given rise to a surge in support for anti-establishment protest parties.

ISRAEL

The Iran-Hamas Plan to Destroy Israel

Hamas views the demand to disarm as part of an Israeli-American "conspiracy" designed to eliminate the Palestinian "resistance" and thwart the "reconciliation" accord with Abbas's Fatah. Hamas's refusal to disarm is already threatening to spoil the "reconciliation." By aligning itself with Iran, Hamas is also seeking to resist any demand that it abandon its ideology and charter, which call for the destruction of Israel and oppose any peace process between Israelis and Palestinians.

MYANMAR

Rohingya Refugee Crisis: The Role of Islamist Terrorists

Aided by foreign terrorist networks in Pakistan and support from Rohingya exiles in Arab Gulf States, Myanmar's Islamists and their foreign backers ultimately may want to establish a sharia state in Rakhine. Approximately 1.1 million Rohingya live in Rakhine, a coastal province in Myanmar (Burma). The Muslim world's condemnation of Myanmar should give the West pause before it joins in the widespread criticism of Myanmar. Al-Qaeda's call "upon all Mujahidin in Bangladesh, India, Pakistan, and the Philippines to set out for Burma to help their Muslim brothers" is accompanied with a threat that the Myanmar government "shall be made to taste what our Muslim brothers have tasted.

SAUDI ARABIA

Saudi Arabia's Bogus Promise: Allowing Women to Drive

Enabling women is still therefore in the hands of their male guardians and many will probably not allow their women to drive -- for different reasons. In the view of many, driving exposes women to "evil": to mix with men on roads, gas stations, traffic police departments; women might abuse freedom to drive and go out without guardian's supervision; wicked men may cause harm to driving women, and so on. The real challenge King Salman needs to face now is how to deal with calls for abolishing male guardianship -- a far more urgent and significant reform that, after calculating the risks and rewards, could well be indefinitely postponed.

SWEDEN

Swedish politicians call for Army to be deployed to No-Go Zones

"It is absolutely necessary to do something, because these gangs are like cancerous tumours in our country, and it is urgent. My absolute belief is that we, the nation of Sweden, must declare war on criminal gangs," Cederbratt said. "It is the responsibility of the state to maintain the law, especially the police. In certain no-go zones, police have been brutally attacked, some of which has even been caught on video. In Rinkeby, police have been trying to build a new, more secure police station for months but have been unable to find building contractors due to the danger of working in the area.

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO

Jihad Concerns in Caribbean

Westerners mulling a Caribbean cruise this holiday season may want to slow the roll on buying those tickets. ISIS terrorists, it seems, may have put the islands on its holiday hit list. Caribbean authorities are currently taking steps to keep terrorists traveling back to Trinidad and Tobago from touching down on island properties. When quizzed over the risk of jihadis returning, Minister of National Security of Trinidad and Tobago at the CARICOM replied: "It is not a matter of yes but when."

UNITED KINGDOM

UK's Hateful Hate-Crime Hub by Douglas Murray

Last week, Britain's Home Secretary Amber Rudd announced the creation of a new national police hub to crack down on hate-crime and "trolling" online. The unit -- which will apparently be run by specialist officers -- will assess complaints and work out whether they amount to a crime or not. They will also recommend removing material from online platforms if they - at the official hate-crime hub -- deem such material "hateful". The problem is that "hate" is an ill-defined thing. What is hateful to one person may not be hateful to another. What is hateful in one context may not be hateful in another. Might there one day be people who will claim to find material "hateful" when it is in fact merely material containing opinions with which they do not agree?

Honor Killing Victim Jessica Mokdad's Mother Leaves Islam and Apologizes

My AFDI Jessica Mokdad Human Rights conference on April 29, 2012 in Dearborn, Michigan was the first (and only) conference of its kind dedicated to increasing awareness of honor killings and gendercide under sharia. When we first called the conference, the only attention the media paid to it at all was to give a platform to Jessica Mokdad's family, which was angry that Jessica's name was being used and claiming that Jessica's murder was not an Islamic honor killing. Jessica's father threatened to sue me. But now Jessica's mother has contacted me to confirm that it was indeed an honor killing and to thank me for standing for her daughter.

Cultural Marxism's Indoctrination into Islam through Opera

Romania joined the EU in 2007 and, as a member, it is required by EU dictates to accept ever larger numbers of Islamic economic refugees as immigrants. Having survived Ceausescu's dictatorship and hundreds of years of constant battles with the invading Ottoman Empire armies, some Romanians see their membership in the EU as a “suicide pact.” Romania is the first stop of migrants into Europe via the Black Sea from Turkey and into Hungary, Slovakia, the Czech Republic, and Germany. For now, the only roadblocks to full Islamization are Hungary and Poland. Unfortunately, their objections will be neutralized by the careful injection of a few thousand fertile Muslims in their midst, and the future threat from these Polish and Hungarian Christians will be diffused.

Jihadis All Want One Thing – Sharia Imposed on the World

Unanimously, all of the violent jihadi groups (Al Qaeda, the Islamic State, Boko Haram, Abu Sayef, Al Shabaab, Hamas, Hizbollah...), the suit-wearing jihadis of the Muslim Brotherhood, and the 57 Islamic members of the OIC (Organisation of Islamic Cooperation) – the heads of state of all 56 Islamic nations plus the Palestinian territories – clearly state they seek to impose sharia (Islamic Law) on the earth. In other words, the Muslim Brotherhood – ie the most prominent Islamic organizations in the United States – has the same objective as Al Qaeda and the Islamic State. Interestingly, ISNA, ICNA, and CAIR, are also the organizations leading/driving all “Interfaith Outreach” in the United States. Sharia kills. Stop the Muslim Mafia.

The renowned historian Bat Ye'or, author of The Decline of Eastern Christianity Under Islam, Eurabia, and other great books, says this:

“Robert Spencer incarnates intellectual courage when, all over the world, governments, intellectuals, churches, universities and media crawl under a hegemonic Universal Caliphate’s New Order.
