Brett Kavanaugh confirmed as 114th Justice of Supreme Court

America is due for a reckoning. It's one of the main reasons Donald Trump was elected president. Ronald Reagan was an early attempt at a reckoning, after the excesses of the 60s – Great Society, Vietnam, and Woodstock. Following Reagan's course correction, we had “Bu-Bama-Ton”, 28 years of Bushes, Obama, and Clinton, tilting the scales toward the elites, the globalists, the deep state, with no regard for honesty, justice, and the needs of average Americans.

Although the reckoning goes beyond simply President Trump being elected, he is the right man at the right time to deliver the message, to restore balance to the Constitution and to human decency, both in desperate need of a course correction. But where is the actual reckoning?

Begin with the Clintons, and their long rap sheet of scandals and corruption. Sure, Bill was impeached, but instead of feeling a healthy sense of shame, he and his wife doubled down, selling out America to personally enrich themselves to the tune of hundreds of millions of dollars. Whitewater and cattle futures were chump change compared to Uranium One and the Clinton Foundation.

George W. Bush went mute during his presidency, never making a case for his actions or policies, presiding over a foolish and inept war effort, allowing the Democrats to define his presidency to the point that Barack Obama had a cakewalk to the White House.

Obama then weaponized his intelligence and justice agencies to undermine a presidential election, a transition, and then the Trump presidency. He governed by executive order, with Congress abdicating as coequal branch of government. Trump was spied upon. The weaponized IRS targeted Obama's political opponents. And they got away with all of it. Abuse of power and obstruction of justice was the Obama doctrine.

Hillary Clinton is a champion of the #MeToo movement despite her attempts to ruin any woman abused or raped by her husband. She sold out America's secrets to the Chinese and who knows who else to enrich her personal slush fund foundation. She allowed Americans to die in Benghazi and then with Obama, blatantly lied about it. She mishandled classified material on her personal server and was exonerated before even being investigated. And got away with all of it.

Having lost her inevitable electoral coronation, she conspired with Obama and his officials to rig an election and overthrow the eventual victor. To date there has been no accounting, no reckoning.

The recent weeks of Kavanaugh accusations are a travesty. Immature and boorish behavior from Democrat senators will be reckoned at the ballot box during the upcoming midterm elections. What about perjury and conspiracy? Where is the reckoning for that?

The media cannot be left out given their role in all of the above, reporting only the news helpful to the left-wing or deep state narrative, ignoring anything to the contrary. While not illegal in most cases, short of outright libel, it is dangerous and bordering on sedition.

As regards Kavanaugh, is it enough for Republicans to say, “we won” and move on to the next battle? There must be a reckoning, otherwise this type of activity will continue and worsen, as it has from Bork to Thomas to Kavanaugh.

God help Trump’s next court nominee. Facing no reckoning, Democrats will regroup, learn from their mistakes, and plan a better attack for next time. The deep state will continue to conspire against President Trump, undermining his presidency. Why should they stop?

The reckoning must be so severe that this type of behavior ends, that no one dare try it again. Public humiliation or shaming isn’t enough, else Hillary Clinton and James Comey would quietly retire into obscurity. Perjury, conspiracy, and obstruction of justice are all punishable by law. This is the type of reckoning that may give Democrats pause when gearing up for the next round of attacks, seeing some of their co-conspirators behind bars.

America is already balkanized and in the midst of a civil war. The adults in Washington, D.C. must step up and administer a large dose of serious punishment to stop this abhorrent behavior from the left, making sure it never happens again.

It’s time for a reckoning, before it’s too late. If not now, then when?

Susan Collins's finest hour caps a great week for America

Susan Collins of Maine rose yesterday to give a thoughtful and well reasoned speech on the floor of the Senate in support of Brett Kavanaugh. She decried the destructive nature of the confirmation process. This was one of the finest speeches in Senate history and ranks among the greatest of statesman moments.

A Showdown Like No Other by Conrad Black

We are in the midst of the fourth and fifth rounds, now unfolding simultaneously, in Donald Trump's revolutionary eviction of the Democratic establishment with its allies in the media, Hollywood, Wall Street and on K Street, and its lookalike post-Reagan Republican also-rans and regional managers. What we are witnessing is the parting fusillade of the Never-Trumpers and goal-line stand of the Democrats who have only recently realized that they had a serious survival problem on their hands, and that Trump is a formidable enemy and cannot easily be banished.

Sorry for Blurting it out, but Christine Blasey Ford is a Liar by David Horowitz

Christine Blasey Ford's story is not only unsubstantiated. It isn't credible. The destruction of Brett Kavanaugh's reputation is the equivalent of a modern-day lynching – the third that Democrats have orchestrated in the last twenty-seven years. It's despicable. At least Republicans like Lindsey Graham have laid that charge at the door of the Democratic culprits who worked so hard to accomplish it. But, as a nation, we have obviously not reached the point where we can grant women true equality by confronting their lies and their reckless accusations with the same candor and frankness we would if they were coming out of the mouths of men.

Quebec's premier-designate, François Legault, says he is prepared to invoke the notwithstanding clause to enforce a prohibition on any public employee from wearing a religious symbol such as a hijab or kippa in the workplace. He would also move swiftly to reduce the number of immigrants allowed into the province by 20 per cent. The right-of-centre party, which has never before held power in Quebec, opposes the wearing of religious symbols, including the hijab, by police officers and others who wield coercive state power.

Good Intentions, a Little Girl's Murder and the Refugee Road to Hell

“By and large, our refugees that come to the country are hard-working citizens that are happy to be in Canada, and I would just hope that we look at this incident for what it is: It’s a one-off situation.” 90% of Syrian refugees are actually unemployed. Whatever they are working hard at, it doesn’t involve earning a living. Canadian schools are struggling with violent assaults by Syrian refugees.

Mohamad Rafia, a Syrian refugee beat his wife with a hockey stick for half an hour and then claimed that he didn't know it was illegal. "More should have been done to educate him," his interpreter insisted. Perhaps with a hockey stick.

"Carry the Light" of Hate

"The purpose of this convention is to provide avenues for Muslim Community in Canada for personal excellence in faith, worship and morality. It is also a platform to share the basis for moral, social and economic development of Canada with Canadian society at large."

Noble thoughts for sure. But if you look at the list of speakers that have been invited to this conference, their background and history do not support "personal excellence or morality" unless of course there is a new definition for these terms. They have a history of making homophobic, anti-Semitic and misogynist remarks.

Canada: Radisson Toronto East turned into unruly refugee camp, say guests (video)

Visitors to an east-end Toronto hotel — which has doubled as a refugee camp all summer — have turned in droves to two well-read travel websites to warn others not to stay there. A visitor from Montreal said kids were "skateboarding in the lobby" and the staff didn't seem to care. "My daughter kept getting harassed by full-grown men (refugees)," the Montrealer wrote on TripAdvisor. Others described the hotel as "dangerous," dirty and noisy — and that the lobby is a "madhouse," full of loitering refugees.

Who Should Regulate Hate? By Raheel Raza

The anti-"Islamophobia" motion M103 in Canada is a challenge because it stifles free speech. I believe you can't mandate tolerance. Rather, we have an innate responsibility to implement respect for those who are different. M103 speaks of rampant racism against Muslims – seriously? Muslims have more freedoms in Canada than anywhere else in the world. They come to Canada from almost 60 different parts of the world. They have their own mosques, organizations, halal meat shops and are free to worship anyway they like.

Huffington Post does victory lap as Hyatt Hotels says it will stop hosting groups that oppose jihad terror

As an Armenian, Hyatt CEO MarkHoplamazian should be ashamed of himself for caving to this pro-jihad intimidation, and setting this dangerous precedent, which will lead ultimately to the denial of hotel accommodations to all those whose political opinions are deemed unacceptable. That's the kind of thing that happens in totalitarian states. And thanks to Mark Hoplamazian, Christopher Mathias, the Huffington Post, and above all the Southern Poverty Law Center, we're well on the way there.

I'm sure Hoplamazian and the Hyatt brass will be glad to hear that I will never stay at a Hyatt again as long as this totalitarian policy is in place, and will recommend to everyone I know that they should boycott the Hyatt chain. They don't want people who have been smeared by the SPLC around? That's easy to arrange.

The Austrian government is considering outlawing a four-fingered salute representing support for the Muslim Brotherhood. ### This American mini-revolution is something to celebrate

Everything and everyone the left-wing press and power structure oppose, they oppose to advance the Cultural Marxist cause, and everything and everyone they support, they support to advance the Cultural Marxist cause. It's not about right and wrong, or justice and injustice, or putting an end to sexual assault, or anything of the sort. It is about advancing Cultural Marxism, nothing more, nothing less. When you defy a power

Our pastime is to blame those of the technologically backward and impoverished past. In most cases, they accomplished things that our present generation lacks the courage and resilience to do—whether navigating the Atlantic in a leaky boat without accurate navigation, homesteading on the prairie in an age without machines or modern medicine, or flying a B-17 without fighter escort over 1943 Germany. Is it our envy of their courage or own self-hatred for our manifest inferiority that forces us to judge figures of the past in our modern courts on the basis of their purported race, class, and gender crimes?
