Opening Statement: CANCELLING CANADA

This year’s Canada Day celebrations were cancelled by the federal government and many municipalities across Canada and the flag flown at half-mast on a day that would traditionally have seen crowds and fireworks. While clusters of patriotic Canadians assembled to celebrate their country and protest continuing lockdowns (about 1000 in front of the Supreme Court in Ottawa), others gathered to show solidarity for the victims of Canada’s “genocide,” the reason that official celebrations were cancelled. In Winnipeg, statues of Queen Victoria and Queen Elizabeth were the objects of the now commonplace toppling and defacing, and its mayor gave the standard platitudinous response to such violence.

Our prime minister never misses an opportunity to accuse Canada of genocide, as he did in 2019 when the report on the National Inquiry into Murdered and Missing Indigenous Women was released, although most of the murdered women whose killers were convicted were in fact victims of domestic or other criminal violence and none died as a result of deliberate government action. As former Liberal minister of justice Irwin Cotler said at the time, “If we say everything is genocide, then nothing is genocide.” Retired general Romeo Dallaire, who commanded the UN Assistance Mission for Rwanda during the 1994 slaughter of Tutsis by Hutus, said: “I’m not comfortable with that. My definition of genocide [is] a deliberate act of a government to exterminate, deliberately and by force and directly, an ethnicity or a group of human beings. And that meant actually going and slaughtering people.” And as Leo Knight said in a video in which he argued that it was a politically driven conclusion: “If Canada is guilty of genocide, we’ve been spectacularly unsuccessful.”

The latest round of Canada’s penitence about genocide was the discovery of hundreds of unmarked graves near a residential school in Kamloops, BC, and at Marieval Indian Residential School in Saskatchewan, through ground-penetrating radar. These particular graves were discovered shortly before Canada Day, although the existence of unmarked graves is known, and the abuses that occurred at residential schools have been documented, among other publications, by the Truth and Reconciliation Commission’s report in 2015. It is likely that more will be discovered. We do not know the causes of death of those in the unmarked graves. The residential school system was in existence for about 150 years, and included periods of major epidemics, including the Spanish flu of 1918-19.

Canada should, and does, acknowledge the harms caused by the residential school system. It should also be acknowledged that the intention behind the schools was to enable Canada's aboriginal people to participate in the Canadian economy. But the recent discovery of unmarked graves gives our prime minister the chance to do something he appears to enjoy: to take centre stage as he laments Canada's shortcomings.

Meanwhile, overshadowed by the publicity about the graves and getting scarce attention by the media, are two bills that will transform Canada from a free country into one in which the lives of citizens are under the control of the government. We should not be surprised that such bills should be tabled under the leadership of a prime minister who actually does seem to want to turn Canada from a sovereign country into one piece of a globalist mosaic controlled by international organizations such as the United Nations. He referred to Canada as a post-national country with no mainstream or core identity in a New York Times interview shortly after his election in 2015, has expressed admiration for China's "basic dictatorship" and, like his father, had great affection for Cuba's late dictator Fidel Castro.

Bill C-10 recently passed third reading in Parliament and is waiting for Senate approval. Ostensibly to protect Canadian cultural content by applying the CRTC's regulatory powers to the internet, the bill will also enable the government to keep tabs on the social media content posted by Canadian citizens. The section of the bill that exempted such user-generated content (such as yours and mine) was deliberately removed from the bill. Why would that be?

But Bill C-10 was just a prelude to another recently passed bill, Bill C-36, that makes section 13 of the Canadian Human Rights Code, rescinded in 2013 under Harper's Conservative government as being far too vague and a threat to free speech, pale in comparison. Not only does Bill C-36 have the late and unlamented Section 13's loosey-goosey definition of hate speech that someone seeking to be offended could interpret at will, it would allow someone whose identity you are not entitled to know to make secret complaints against you which could, among many other things, put you under house arrest, ban you from attending any place, from drinking alcohol and from owning a firearm. This unknown person's complaint could be based on a fear that you're "biased" or "hateful." If convicted, you could be ordered to pay $20,000 to the accuser and another $50,000 to the government. How do you like them apples, hater? Ezra Levant of Rebel News has a few things to say about it.

Suspicious minds might think that the churning of emotions about unmarked graves at residential schools are a fine distraction from the steps that our government is taking to keep Canadians under government control, something our prime minister likes to call "keeping Canadians safe." Canadians should rise up against these oppressive bills and say, "No thanks, Justin. Don't worry about keeping us safe. We can look after ourselves. Just give us back our freedoms, will you?"

Some of us actually love our country and don't want to cancel Canada nor turn it into a socialist utopia where Big Brother government knows best.

With Bill C-36, Trudeau Government Launches Dangerous New Assault On Your Freedom Of Expression

Bill C-36 is incredibly dangerous, goes against Canada's values, and must be stopped. Under the section "Fear of hate propaganda offence or hate crime," C-36 makes it possible for the government to bring someone before a judge if someone else is worried they could commit a crime.

I've included that section below in its entirety, because it is essential for all Canadians to familiarize ourselves with how dangerous this legislation is:

Fear of hate propaganda offence or hate crime

810.012 (1) A person may, with the Attorney General's consent, lay an information before a provincial court judge if the person fears on reasonable grounds that another person will commit

(a) an offence under section 318 or subsection 319(1) or (2);

(b) an offence under subsection 430(4.1); or

(c) an offence motivated by bias, prejudice or hate based on race, national or ethnic origin, language, colour, religion, sex, age, mental or physical disability, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, or any other similar factor.

Appearances

(2) The provincial court judge who receives an information under subsection (1) may cause the parties to appear before a provincial court judge.

Adjudication

(3) If the provincial court judge before whom the parties appear is satisfied by the evidence adduced that the informant has reasonable grounds for the fear, the judge may order that the defendant enter into a recognizance to keep the peace and be of good behaviour for a period of not more than 12 months.

Duration extended

(4) However, if the provincial court judge is also satisfied that the defendant was convicted previously of any offence referred to in subsection (1), the judge may order that the defendant enter into the recognizance for a period of not more than two years.

Refusal to enter into recognizance

(5) The provincial court judge may commit the defendant to prison for a term of not more than 12 months if the defendant fails or refuses to enter into the recognizance.

Conditions in recognizance

(6) The provincial court judge may add any reasonable conditions to the recognizance that the judge considers desirable to secure the good conduct of the defendant, including conditions that

(a) require the defendant to wear an electronic monitoring device, if the Attorney General makes that request;

(b) require the defendant to return to and remain at their place of residence at specified times;

(c) require the defendant to abstain from the consumption of drugs, except in accordance with a medical prescription, of alcohol or of any other intoxicating substance;

(d) require the defendant to provide, for the purpose of analysis, a sample of a bodily substance prescribed by regulation on the demand of a peace officer, a probation officer or someone designated under paragraph 810.3(2)(a) to make a demand, at the place and time and on the day specified by the person making the demand, if that person has reasonable grounds to believe that the defendant has breached a condition of the recognizance that requires them to abstain from the consumption of drugs, alcohol or any other intoxicating substance;

(e) require the defendant to provide, for the purpose of analysis, a sample of a bodily substance prescribed by regulation at regular intervals that are specified, in a notice in Form 51 served on the defendant, by a probation officer or a person designated under paragraph 810.3(2)(b) to specify them, if a condition of the recognizance requires the defendant to abstain from the consumption of drugs, alcohol or any other intoxicating substance; or

(f) prohibit the defendant from communicating, directly or indirectly, with any person identified in the recognizance, or refrain from going to any place specified in the recognizance, except in accordance with the conditions specified in the recognizance that the judge considers necessary.

Conditions — firearms

(7) The provincial court judge shall consider whether it is desirable, in the interests of the defendant's safety or that of any other person, to prohibit the defendant from possessing any firearm, cross-bow, prohibited weapon, restricted weapon, prohibited device, ammunition, prohibited ammunition or explosive substance, or all of those things. If the judge decides that it is desirable to do so, the judge shall add that condition to the recognizance and specify the period during which it applies.

Surrender, etc.

(8) If the provincial court judge adds a condition described in subsection (7) to a recognizance, the judge shall specify in the recognizance how the things referred to in that subsection that are in the defendant's possession shall be surrendered, disposed of, detained, stored or dealt with and how the authorizations, licences and registration certificates that are held by the defendant shall be surrendered.

Reasons

(9) If the provincial court judge does not add a condition described in subsection (7) to a recognizance, the judge shall include in the record a statement of the reasons for not adding it.

Variance of conditions

(10) A provincial court judge may, on application of the informant, the Attorney General or the defendant, vary the conditions fixed in the recognizance.

“C-36 is the legislation of cancel culture”: Ezra Levant on Liberal “hate speech” bill

The Liberal government's Bill C-36 would let the Canadian Human Rights Commission prosecute people for online speech, and would also give courts the power to take away liberty over fear someone might commit a hate-motivated offence. Former human rights commission defendant Ezra Levant joined True North's Andrew Lawton to discuss Bill C-36, which Ezra says is the "legislation of cancel culture."

Canada: Liberals Propose 'Hate Speech' Bill with $50,000 Fine, 1 Year Jail

If a complaint against an accused person is "substantiated," the defendant may be ordered to pay up to $70,000 in penalties divided into two components. The first component would be a payment of "compensation" of up to $20,000 (CAD) "for any pain and suffering that the victim experienced" as a function of "hate propaganda" or "hate speech." The second component is a fine, up to $50,000 (CAD), paid to the federal government. Failure to comply with the "recognizance" could result in imprisonment of up to 12 months.

Free speech is the hill to die on

It took seven years for Stephen Harper's Conservative government to repeal section 13 of the Canadian Human Rights Act. After an eight year reprieve, it's coming back. Now, the Liberal government is quite proudly trying to revive section 13, tabling – in the final House of Commons sitting before summer – Bill C-36, which purportedly addresses "hate propaganda, hate crimes and hate speech."

Canada: MPs vote unanimously to hold 'emergency summit on Islamophobia' before August

It is expected that the Liberals and NDP would push for an "emergency summit on Islamophobia," but now the Conservatives under the leadership of Erin O'Toole have joined in, helping the Liberals with their agenda to present Canada as a dangerous, murderous country for Muslims. What follows from this irrational thought is that the government needs to hunt down so-called "white supremacist" groups, while ignoring Canada's jihad expansion problem.

Ottawa Peace Tower flag to fly half-mast for Canada Day: Justin Trudeau

Trudeau's decision to fly the Canadian flag half-mast on Canada Day comes as far-left activists have called for the national civic holiday to be cancelled altogether. According to the rules that govern how to display the national flag, half-masting the Canada flag is mandatory on several occasions including upon the deaths of the Queen, her family members, the prime minister of Canada, former prime ministers and other dignitaries.

This is My Canada, So I'm Going to Celebrate Canada Day

I read about the cancellation of Canada Day and it saddens me. Ask any immigrant and they will tell you how much Canada means to them. Pitched as a country that time and again has been polled as one of the best countries to live in, we should not shut down the celebration of its inception. To me there is no other country in the world that celebrates differences the way Canada does.

Trudeau's Lies About Where Thousands of Indigenous Children Are Buried

Nowhere in any of the stream of stories in the MSM is it ever mentioned that it was Liberal governments who set up the residential schools where so many aboriginal children were buried—and forgotten. Most politicians of the current day are saying they were “shocked” at the news which has been known but not media reported on—for decades. Trudeau has had six years to move forward with the TRC's recommended framework for addressing the abandoned cemeteries. He pretends to be surprised and shocked at the “discovery” of abandoned cemeteries.

Jumping to Conclusions Without the Facts in the Indigenous Residential Schools Question

There is no evidence whatsoever of an intent to hide these graves. Further there is no indication that the children buried in these long-forgotten cemeteries died of abuse or neglect. But one is led to believe this by the media's accounts. The story of the residential schools is heartbreaking from many perspectives. According to the media this Canadian tragedy was the failure of the Catholic Church and other religious organizations, which is outright anti-Catholic bigotry. It is another attempt to discredit religious faith and to drive religion from the public square. The residential schools are the tool which is being used to do so.

Communist China applauds Canadian senators who voted against genocide motion

On Wednesday, senators voted on Motion 79, which called on the Senate to recognize that China's government is perpetrating a genocide against Uyghurs and other Turkic Muslims. Canadian senators who voted against a motion labelling China's treatment of Uyghurs as genocide received praise from China's foreign ministry.

Alberta pastor found in contempt of court, another has jail sentence extended for holding worship services

Pastors Artur Pawlowski and Tim Stephens both continue to be in the grips of a fight with Alberta Public Health after they chose to hold worship services during lockdown. Sen. Military violated rules by collecting information on Canadians, conducting propaganda during pandemic Military commanders violated federal rules and acted without authority when they ordered intelligence teams to collect information on the public as well as use propaganda techniques against Canadians, top defence officials now admit. Information was culled from social media accounts of members of the public in Ontario and data was compiled on peaceful Black Lives Matter gatherings. Military commanders also proceeded with a plan to use propaganda techniques employed during the Afghanistan war, claiming that was needed to head off civil disobedience by Canadians during the coronavirus pandemic.

Lawsuit Exposes COVID Jabs As Unsafe Transhumanist Gene Therapies

Clearly now, the world scientific consensus has awakened to the fact that COVID-19 didn't emerge from a bat, a pangolin, or even a "leak" from the lab in Wuhan by accident. The compelling evidence of the cover-up presumes foul play and the guilt of the agents and agencies complicit. Most certain is the intentional deployment of the virus to achieve geopolitical and economic objectives—such as the "Final Solution" espoused by Bill Gates as well as the "Great Global Reset" urged by his colleague, World Economic Forum Director Klaus Schwab.

Trust the Science?

The scientists have made many contradictory or false claims about the virus. First, they told us masks were useless; then they told us we had to wear one mask; then they said we had to wear two masks. The scientists claimed that the restrictions would be lifted and we can go back to our normal life once we got the vaccine, but then they told us we were not allowed to go back to a normal life even if we were vaccinated. The scientists claim that the vaccines are 100% safe, yet the FDA, a group of scientists, refuses to approve these vaccines other than for emergency use.

THE GREAT RESET

By 2030 You'll Own Nothing And You'll Be Happy

When the WEF revealed its Davos 2021 Agenda, it confirmed the event this year would be digital and herald the public unveiling of its Great Reset Initiative. The Covid-19 pandemic has been used as confirmation that no institution or individual alone can address the economic, environmental, social, and technological challenges of our complex, interdependent world. It is also being touted as a reason to support the "The 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development." One hundred and ninety-three UN member states adopted this 15-year global framework and its ambitious set of 17 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) in September 2015.

There is More to BlackRock Than You Might Imagine

There is a seamless interface that ties the UN Agenda 2030 with the Davos World Economic Forum Great Reset and the nascent economic policies of the Biden Administration. That interface is BlackRock. The fact that three of the most influential economic appointees of the Biden Administration come from BlackRock, and before that all from the Obama Administration, is noteworthy. There is a definite pattern and suggests that the role of BlackRock in Washington is far larger than we are being told.

Canada's heatwave is a vision of our future

In decades to come swathes of the world will resemble British Columbia today. We don't usually associate the Great White North with blistering heat, but on Tuesday a new record was set for Canada — 49.6°C in Lytton, British Columbia. Of course, heatwaves happen; and Canada isn't immune. Nevertheless what's happened this week is extraordinary. Why the Democrats need racism

The Democrats are politically dead without the black vote. But what happens if, one morning, God forbid, a large number of 'black' Americans woke up and decided that they're not 'black' after all. Just Americans. It is a matter of survival, for the Democrats, that 'black' Americans must continue to see themselves as a distinct racial group, at odds with the rest of society – and that they look to the Democrats for salvation. The fact that America is obviously far, far less racist than it used to be, must therefore never be admitted. The Democrats' grip on the black vote is not firm. And if they lose it, they are done for.

French Style Reign of Terror has Started in America

The super-rich and their paid off minions in media, corporations, government, academia et al. were petrified when President Donald Trump ran on a platform of America first. The super-rich went crazy when he was elected and kept his promises. The elites wanted open borders, he closed them. The elites were in bed with China for money, to hell with Americans, and President Trump put a stop to it. President Trump put a stop to funding the climate change scam. He made Europe pay their fair share for defense and treat us fairly in trade. He tried to bring our troops home and end wars of no importance to us. He rebuilt the military and gave them proper rules of engagement et al. President Trump promoted energy independence thereby raising the lifestyle of all Americans. The military industrial complex hated President Trump because he was reducing their profits from no win wars not vital to our security.

Be Safe: Don't Visit Your Dying Parent. Don't Leave Your House. Don't Get Married. Don't Have Children...

Millions of Americans not only gave up their right to go to work, earn a living, attend church or synagogue, and visit friends and relatives, but they even gave up their right to visit dying relatives and friends. One can assume that nearly every person recorded as having died of COVID-19 died without having a single loved one at their bedside from the moment they entered a hospital until their death. Forget About Making Peace with the Islamic World

If a nation desires peace with its neighbor, but that neighbor implacably rejects peace, then any imposed peace process from outside is nothing more than a handmaiden to futility or worse. The peacemaker often creates a catastrophic erosion of security for the peace-loving nation, which because of its peaceful intentions is the only party that is then leaned upon to make endless and one-sided concessions to a belligerent enemy. Such has been the curse of the peace process for Israel in its attempts to survive relentless Arab and Muslim aggression.

Pope Francis: 'Tear Down the Walls' against Islam!

Pope Francis wants any and all walls, real or figurative, that stand between the West and Islam broken down immediately—or so he’s constantly saying. He called for the “growth of a more supportive humanity that tears down the wall of indifference.” This was spoken in the context of urging Europeans to take in more illegally arrived Muslim migrants. The grand irony of all this is that Pope Francis lives in the only state to be surrounded by walls—Vatican City—and most of these bastions were erected to ward off ongoing Islamic invasions.
